EAT LESS MEAT
IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jai Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jai Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

WINNING BUT MUST HAVE MORE MEN

Service of Every Man and Woman Must Be Utilized, Says War Chief

NEEDED IN ARMY AND MUNITION SHOPS

Power Distribution Board in Great Britain to Comb Out All Eligible Men Who Have Not Been Enrolled in the Army.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Gen. Sir William Robertson, chief of the British imperial staff at army headquarters, said yesterday in a speech at Bideford, Lincolnshire, that, while the allies were winning the war slowly but surely, he wished to impress upon his hearers the necessity of procuring more men for the army and munitions factories. In this connection, he said, he had a serious word of warning to give. "We are not justified in expecting to win the war," he said, "unless the service of every man and woman in the country is utilized to the fullest extent."

"We must be under no delusion," he continued, "as to the end or probable duration of this great struggle. We must be prepared to continue for a time which cannot at present be estimated. In fact, we must be prepared for the worst while we hope for the best. We have adopted in theory the principle of national service. We must see that we put it into practice because we want more men, and we want them now, and eventually we shall want all who can be spared."

Great Britain is in urgent need of men for her armies and also for her munitions factories, according to a statement to this effect given out at London yesterday by the man power distribution board, recently appointed to comb out men eligible for military service in the United Kingdom who have not yet been enrolled in the army. The board reported it had examined officials of the admiralty, war office, ministry of munitions and other departments and that there was urgent need of fresh supplies of men for the armies and munitions factories in order "to maintain our forces in the field at the numbers already fixed for them, and at the same time to maintain the supply of munitions essential for their equipment and proper utilization."

The board therefore directed that no exemption be granted certain classes heretofore exempt, and that there be a more general dilution of skilled labor in munitions factories with women and other workers heretofore untrained. It suggested conferences of employers and employees with a view to freeing skilled labor now engaged in private work for employment in munitions plants. "It is essential," the report says, "that a large part of the labor now engaged in private work shall be diverted to government orders or released for the army."

The board also has under consideration the extended use of women and of men over the military age and also the release of men of military age now employed in government offices. This is the only means, the board says, whereby extension of the age for compulsory service can be avoided.

No official figures have been given recently as to the number of men serving with the British army. On May 25 King George in signing the military service bill placed the number raised up to that time at 5,041,000. In July, August and September the British casualties were 207,109.

Bedroom Wall Protection.
While visiting a friend I discovered her way of preventing the beds from scratching the walls when moving them. Tacked to the baseboard at the head of each bed was a strip of picture molding a trifle longer than the width of the bed and painted to correspond to the woodwork. The casters rolled against the molding, and there was no danger of injury to the wallpaper.—Washington Post.

BRATTLEBORO LOCAL.

Rev. E. Q. S. Osgood will conduct the chapel service at the Retreat Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Yesterday was the 47th anniversary of the worst flood that ever visited Brattleboro, on Monday, Oct. 4, 1869.

The sidewalk on Vernon street has been completed from a point at the foot of Main street a distance of about 300 yards south. It will be extended farther south if the appropriation available for work permits.

Today the Empire presents Mae Marsh in an absorbing drama, Her Shattered Idol, in four acts, also the fourth chapter of The Secret of the Submarine, in two acts. Tomorrow Ruth Roland in The Red Circle, and other pictures will be shown.

One of the most enjoyable dances ever held in Academy hall, West Brattleboro, was given last evening with over 50 couples present. The music, which was furnished by Maynard's orchestra of Keene, was excellent and the new piano recently placed in the hall added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Today the Princess theater presents Frank Losee and Grace Valentine in the Paramount feature, The Evil Thereof, by Channing Pollock, with an all star cast, also Billie Burke in the 13th chapter of Gloria's Romance. Tomorrow Mile. Anna Pavlova in the special big production, The Dumb Girl of Portici in eight acts, will be an attraction.

The inconvenience of having the mailbox at the railroad station on the old station building has not yet been relieved by the railway mail service officials. Persons desiring to mail letters at the station are obliged to walk more than the length of the new platform on the east side and then only those familiar with the territory are able to find the box, which is hidden from view by the bay window of the old station.

Last night was Ceres night at the Grange. The lecturer had charge and the following program was enjoyed: Song by the choir, Hail to the Harvest; reading, Ceres, Pomona and Flora, Mrs. Lucy Sargent; diet, Mrs. Morse and Mrs. Farnum; Mrs. Farnum sang Harvesters and Gleaners, the harvesters and gleaners being represented by Elizabeth Franklin, Bernice Wells, Edward McKay and Raymond Wells, who presented their sheaves to Ceres, Mrs. C. S. Hopkins, who responded; reading, The White Frost, Mrs. Fred Smith; reading, Popping Corn, Mrs. Metcalf; song by the choir, The Gleaners; reading, The Gleaner, Miss Ruth Dalrymple; recitation, The Photograph, Mrs. Harman; reading, Harvest Days, Miss Nellie Eddy; Uses for Corn in Cooking, Mrs. Hopkins; Mrs. E. E. Covey, Mrs. Gay, Mrs. Oscar Covey and Mrs. Walter Robbins; song by the choir, Sowing and Reaping. After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and a prize offered for the nearest guess of the number of kernels on an ear of corn. Mrs. Walter Spear guessed the right number, 365. Oscar Covey received the consolation prize. Refreshments of popcorn were served by the lecturer.
